

Your moving checklist

Like many things in life, a little preparation when you're selling your home goes a long way to minimising your stress levels. Once you've exchanged contracts, it can seem like you have ages to get organised, but moving day will arrive faster than you can say 'Have we got internet at our new place?' Take some of the stress out of moving home by working through our checklist of organisations and businesses you need to inform about your new address.
